Welcome to the Summer/Fall 2019 Dementia Program Guide

Having a diagnosis of dementia is a life-altering event. The challenges faced on the dementia journey are difficult – indeed some of the largest an individual and/or family will ever face. Understanding the challenges and emotions one encounters with a dementia diagnosis, the Alzheimer Society London and Middlesex (ASLM), McCormick Dementia Services, The Salvation Army and the VON Alzheimer Community Support Program are pleased to present this guide as a resource for support services designed to mitigate the many challenges of dementia.

Our organizations have come together to champion care and to provide hope, relief and support for people living with dementia – those diagnosed and their care partners and families. This guide is designed to provide a road map for the dementia journey where dementia care programs and services are clearly identified in a simple and easy to navigate format. Organized in four sections (education, support and recreation programs and featuring a new research participant opportunities section), the Guide features a navigation map that allows you to see available programs and services at a glance.

It is important to note that while this guide identifies those programs and services available at the specific organizations, social work support on an individual and/or family basis is available at the Alzheimer Society and McCormick Dementia Services with counselling also available in Middlesex County through the VON. As you and your family navigate through the dementia journey, refer to this guide frequently to learn more about the vital programs and service available to you in London and Middlesex County.

As we age, particularly for those in their middle age, it becomes apparent our body is changing. It becomes harder to perform certain physical movements that were at one time easier and certainly, less painful.

Like your body, your brain is also going through an aging process. Your thinking process actually is slowing down much like the other physiological changes to your body. However, it is important to understand that an aging brain and the bothersome attributes that accompany it are not necessarily signs of dementia or even mild cognitive impairment. According to the Alzheimer Society of Canada, it is estimated that close to 40% of all Canadians 65 years and over experience memory loss. There is no underlying medical condition that causes this memory loss because it is normal or age-associated memory impairment. Brain diseases like Alzheimer’s disease and other dementias are different. Age-associated memory impairment and dementia can be told apart in a number of ways.

Below are some examples.

<thead>
<tr>
<th>Normal Aging</th>
<th>Dementia</th>
</tr>

<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Not being able to remember details of a conversation or event that took place a year ago</td>
<td>Not being able to recall details of recent events or conversations</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Not being able to remember the name of an acquaintance</td>
<td>Not recognizing or knowing the names of family members</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Forgetting things and events occasionally</td>
<td>Forgetting things or events more frequently</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Occasionally have difficulty finding words</td>
<td>Frequent pauses and substitutions when finding words</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>You are worried about your memory but your relatives are not</td>
<td>Your relatives are worried about your memory, but you are not aware of any problems</td>
</tr>
</tbody>

If you are worried about your memory, talk to your family doctor who can evaluate your situation (some Family Health Teams offer Memory Clinics for assessment and counselling) or refer you to Parkwood Institute’s Aging Brain and Memory Clinic.

Note: the above should not be considered a diagnostic tool.
Mild Cognitive Impairment

People with mild cognitive impairment have problems with memory, language, thinking or judgment that are greater than the cognitive changes associated with normal aging. Family, friends and the person with MCI may notice these changes and they can be objectively measured in cognitive tests, but the changes in cognitive abilities are usually not serious enough to interfere with daily life and independence.

A person with MCI has an increased risk of developing Alzheimer’s disease or another dementia, but some people with MCI remain stable and others show improved cognitive abilities over time.

ASLM Learning the ROPES for Living with Mild Cognitive Impairment®

Learning the ROPES for Living with MCI® is a six-week program delivered by the Alzheimer Society London and Middlesex for those diagnosed with MCI and their care partners. It is facilitated by Registered Social Workers focusing on optimizing cognitive health through lifestyle choices, memory training and psychosocial support.

Fee: $75.00 per person (Financial assistance is available) - Pre-registration is required

The Alzheimer Society (ASLM) First Link Learning Series

Learning that you or a loved one has dementia is a life changing experience. The changes experienced in the early stages can be particularly challenging and impact both the person diagnosed and their family. Gaining access to important dementia education and resources is vital. That's where the Alzheimer Society’s First Link Learning Series comes in.

The series is comprised of five modules (First Steps for People with Dementia, First Steps for Care Partners, Care Essentials, Options for Care and Care in the Later Stages) each one building upon the other to provide participants with a comprehensive overview of dementia, coping strategies, resources and support systems.

Through the series, participants have the opportunity to learn and share with others who are living the same experience. The provincially standardized curriculum is designed to provide the right information at the right time with small group sizes allowing ample opportunity to apply the learning to an individualized situation. The First Link Learning Series is a free program.

A brief assessment with a Registered Social Worker must take place prior to participation.

Care for the person living with dementia is available at some sessions. To arrange that care, pre-registration is required.

The First Link Learning Series is generously supported by the South West Local Health Integration Network (LHIN)
ASLM First Link Learning Series - First Steps for People with Dementia
For the person with dementia in the early stage

This four-week module of the First Link Learning Series helps individuals newly diagnosed with dementia understand their diagnosis and the changes they experience. This module will also offer participants an opportunity to share and connect with others embarking on a similar journey. The program is facilitated by registered health professionals who create a comfortable, failure free learning environment.

This First Steps module is for persons with dementia – the accompanying education program for care partners (First Steps for Care Partners) is offered multiple times a year and twice a year it runs concurrently with First Steps for People With Dementia.

The Alzheimer Society London and Middlesex, in partnership with the Sisters of St. Joseph and the Medway High School music program, is pleased to offer the Intergenerational Choir Program. Led by Medway’s choral director, the music reaches out to clients to help bring back memories and socially engage and enliven them with contact with a younger generation. The Intergenerational Choir meets weekly (school activities will sometimes impact the weekly schedule) to sing with a social time to mingle after each rehearsal. The session culminates with a concert for family and friends.

Fee: No charge - Pre-registration is required - Max: 40 clients and care partners

Adult Day Programs

Adult day programs provide a much-needed opportunity for mental stimulation for participants and respite time for the caregiver, who may appreciate the time to rest or take care of their own needs. In addition, caregivers can enjoy a sense of reassurance that their loved one is well taken care of so that they can have some often much-needed time for themselves. Clients are involved in small and large group programs based on their interests and abilities, where the goal is always to have clients succeed in whatever activity they choose to participate. Each client’s social-recreational history is obtained upon admission and is used to guide the staff in developing a person-centred, individualized program.

Research Participation Opportunities

Participating in Research

Research can positively impact the lives of people with dementia, their families and caregivers. Research studies are undertaken to help researchers investigate several things, including:

- If treatments or care practices are safe
- If treatments have any side effects
- If new treatments are better than available treatments
- How best to provide care and support
- How the disease affects different areas of the brain
- How people can control their symptoms and improve their quality of life

The knowledge we gain through research studies helps improve the ways we can prevent, diagnose and treat dementia. Because of this, many people with dementia and their caregivers are interested in participating in research projects.

To learn more about participation in research visit the Alzheimer Society of Canada website where you will find a comprehensive section on research, what you should know about participation, the different types of studies, questions you should ask before participating and much more. You will find this information at: www.alzheimer.ca/en/Home/Research/participating-in-research
